1 Innes Corners Plaza

Known originally as Innes Corners, this is where our tour of Langley City begins.

Adam and William Innes were two of the earliest settlers to Langley and this plaza is named in their memory.

2 Coast Hotel and Convention Centre – Cascades Casino – Summit Theatre

Built in 2005, this 25,000 square foot centre is able to host large conventions and gala balls. Attached to the Convention Centre is Cascades Casino, a major Fraser Valley Entertainment Centre. It also houses the Summit Theatre.

3 Old Yale Road (Fraser Highway) and Topping Road (204 Street)

Once known as Old Yale Road Fraser Highway is a provincial roadway. Converted to a one-way street in 1996, it has made downtown Langley a pedestrian friendly restaurant, shopping and art gallery destination.

4 Public Art - The Conductor – Topping Road and Old Yale Road

Located on the original site of the BC Electric Interurban railway line, this sculpture depicts a time in the early 1900's when railway cars became a familiar sight to Langley residents.

5 Langley City Hall – The Library and Timms Community Centre

Built in 2000 the Langley City Hall is located on the same site as the Timms Family home. The Timms family contributed a great deal to the economic development of Langley Prairie. The first Langley City Hall was demolished to make way for the current building and both structures stood on this property.

6 Federal Building

Known in the community as the "Old Post Office", this building was restored to its original condition in 2003. It is now home to the Langley City Community Police.

7 The One-way Street and McBurney Lane

Downtown Langley contains an eclectic selection of stores and restaurants. The street also includes a small world of restaurants. It is home to two prestigious art galleries. Historic McBurney Lane is dedicated to the memory of Dr. Albert McBurney for his care and attention to the citizens of Langley.

8 Douglas Park

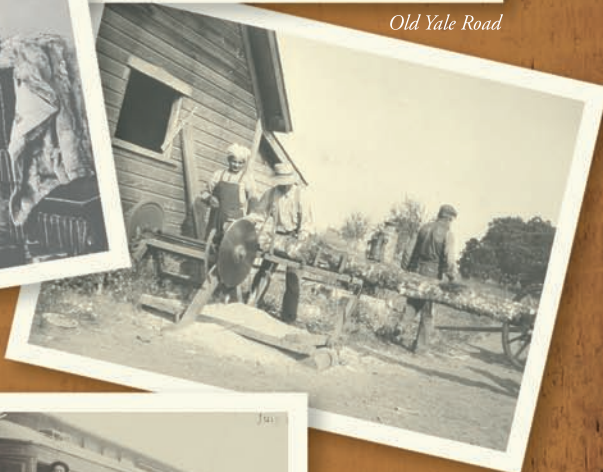

This downtown Langley Park is named after the first Governor of British Columbia and features a handicap accessible playground, a water park and two tennis courts.

9 206 and Fraser Highway

Our tour winds up at the end of the one-way section of Fraser Highway. A landmark in Langley, "The Old Country Inn" stood for twenty-five years serving Austrian cuisine in a fine dining atmosphere.
